

How water gets to us song

Sung to the song 'Incy wincy spider'

Have you wondered how our water gets to you and me
And comes out of taps and bubblers, it seems a mystery
It's good to turn the tap on and have the water flow
I'll tell you how it gets there and then you too will know.

The clouds that float up in the sky are where the water's found
Their raindrops join together and fall down to the ground
They flow across the land and then into rivers run
But that's not where they stay because their journey's just begun.

The rivers flow into a dam and that's where water's caught
And it can stay there for a while, well that's what I've been taught
We catch the water in a dam so we will have enough
So even when it doesn't rain there's plenty of the stuff.

The water flows along big pipes to places where it's mixed
They add in healthy chemicals and take out leaves and sticks
It gets a lot of cleaning so there you can plainly see
The water is much safer and tastes good for you and me.

The water's pumped along more pipes to places all around
The pipes go to our homes and schools, they're underneath the ground
They end at all the toilets, taps and bubblers that you see
To give us fresh clean water, now it's not a mystery.
