July 2021 to July 2023

Sydney
WATER

About the artwork and artist

The artwork was inspired by a topographic patterning of Sydney and connects stories of both saltwater and freshwater people, land sustainability and culture.

The inclusion of the blue whale and eels represent the native marine life that live in the freshwater and saltwater regions of Sydney's waters.

The Sydney land formations that are illustrated within the curved patterns also feature references to local native plants such as wattles and warrigal greens. These plants are found around different areas of Sydney Harbour as well as other coastal regions and inland rivers throughout Sydney.

The circular patterns represent the many watering holes and meeting places of Traditional Owners, which were used to share knowledge and stories between generations.

Dennis Golding is a descendant of the Kamilaroi/Gamilaraay people from the north-west of New South Wales. He spent most of his childhood living in Redfern and now resides in the south-east Sydney suburb of Little Bay.

Dennis has a Bachelor of Fine Arts (Honours) degree from UNSW Art & Design. In addition to creating his own pieces, he has been commissioned to create artworks for a range of high-profile projects including the inaugural Indigenous Wallabies jersey for Rugby Australia, the Indigenous jersey for the Wests Tigers NRL club, the Indigenous jersey for the Sydney Swifts netball club and RAP artworks for the Cancer Institute of NSW and Infrastructure Australia.

Acknowledgement of Country

Sydney Water respectfully acknowledges the Traditional Custodians across Dharawal, Gundungurra, Darkinjung, Dharug and Eora nations where we work, live and learn.

Their lore, traditions and customs nurtured and continue to nurture the waters, both saltwater and sweetwater, in our operating area, creating wellbeing for all.

We pay our deepest respect to Elders, past and present. We acknowledge their deep connections to the land and waters.

We are committed to reconciliation and partnering with our Traditional Custodians, to ensure ongoing collaboration on Caring for Country now and into the future, learning from traditional and contemporary approaches, while maintaining and respecting cultural and spiritual connections.

A message from Reconciliation Australia

Reconciliation Australia commends Sydney Water on the formal endorsement of its inaugural Innovate Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP).

Commencing an Innovate RAP is a crucial and rewarding period in an organisation's reconciliation journey. It is a time to build strong foundations and relationships, ensuring sustainable, thoughtful and impactful RAP outcomes into the future.

Since 2006, RAPs have provided a framework for organisations to leverage their structures and diverse spheres of influence to support the national reconciliation movement.

This Innovate RAP is both an opportunity and an invitation for Sydney Water to expand its understanding of its core strengths and deepen its relationship with its community, staff and stakeholders.

By investigating and understanding the integral role it plays across its sphere of influence, Sydney Water will create dynamic reconciliation outcomes, supported by and aligned with its business objectives.

The Innovate RAP's implementation is the time to strengthen and develop the connections that form the lifeblood of all RAP commitments. The RAP program's framework of relationships, respect and opportunities emphasises not only the importance of fostering consultation and collaboration with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and communities, but also empowering and enabling staff to contribute to this process, as well.

With over 2.3 million people now either working or studying in an organisation with a RAP, the program's potential for impact is greater than ever. Sydney Water is part of a strong network of more than 1,100 corporate, government and not-for-profit organisations that have taken goodwill and intention, and transformed it into action.

Implementing an Innovate RAP signals Sydney Water's readiness to develop and strengthen relationships, engage staff and stakeholders in reconciliation, and pilot innovative strategies to ensure effective outcomes.

Getting these steps right will ensure the sustainability of future RAPs and reconciliation initiatives, and provide meaningful impact toward Australia's reconciliation journey.

Congratulations Sydney Water on your Innovate RAP and I look forward to following your ongoing reconciliation journey.

A message from the Managing Director

Water is not just essential for life. It is a key part of our First Nations' cultures.

Our Traditional Custodians have protected the vitality of our waterways for more than 60,000 years, and on behalf of Sydney Water, I would like to extend my sincere gratitude to them for their Care of Country.

A key part of that gratitude is continuing to embed and embrace reconciliation in everything that we do.

As Australia's largest water utility, we have an obligation to continue the work of our First Nations peoples to protect the water in our environment and communities.

Through this work, we will sustain and improve the health of the landscape, and deliver essential and sustainable water, wastewater, recycled water and stormwater services to more than five million people in Greater Sydney and the Illawarra.

This Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) is an important step on our journey. Through the RAP, we outline how we will acknowledge and celebrate the enduring connections of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to the waters and lands on which we operate. We aim to develop strong relationships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities to bring about meaningful change.

Our focus is to ensure our employees are culturally aware and respectful in the way we operate, and to address areas of disadvantage where we can make a difference, particularly by supporting employment opportunities and through business partnerships.

This RAP reinforces our vision of creating a better life with world-class water services by respecting and celebrating the cultural heritage of First Nations people and driving positive social change that will benefit generations of Australians to come.

Our vision for Reconciliation

We acknowledge Aboriginal Australia's 60,000+ year history and their role as the Traditional Custodians of the lands and waters on which we work, live, and learn.

Our vision for reconciliation is to engage in deep listening and to learn from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples as the first engineers of water and natural resources in this country and to blend their traditional knowledge with modern science to manage our waterways and protect the environment.

We are committed to addressing the inequality that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples often experience. We will do this by partnering with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander businesses to increase economic opportunities and to improve employment outcomes within our organisation and through our partner relationships.

Relationships

We will engage in deep listening with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander stakeholders and organisations for knowledge sharing and best practice advice on caring for waterways and Country. We commit to exploring opportunities to positively influence our employees, our partners and our customers to advance reconciliation.

Respect

We are committed to improving the management of our waterways by learning from the knowledge and traditional practices used by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. We will provide opportunities for our employees, partners and customers to learn about local First Nations peoples culture and connection to Country in our operating area.

Opportunities

We recognise the value of applying Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander perspectives and knowledge into the work we do as the water provider for Greater Sydney, Blue Mountains and the Illawarra. We are committed to increasing opportunities for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander individuals and businesses. We will use our position to increase employment and economic outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people across our operating area and through our business partnerships.

About Sydney Water

Every day, we supply more than 5 million customers across Sydney, the Blue Mountains and the Illawarra, with safe, high-quality drinking water. We also look after wastewater, recycled water and some stormwater services, ensuring our communities can enjoy healthy rivers and clean beaches.

We are a State-Owned Corporation, wholly owned by the NSW Government and have been delivering essential services for more than 130 years.

Our Vision is to create a better life with world-class water services. By delivering world class water services, we can create a better life for our customers, our business partners and our communities. We have three equally important objectives:

- protect public health
- protect the environment
- be a successful business

Our families, friends and future generations depend on us to protect our water resources and our environment. In doing so, we respect the traditional 'Caring for Country' restorative approaches practiced over tens of thousands of years by our First Nations people and play our part to sustain and improve the health of the landscape by recognising and nurturing the value of water in our environment and communities.

Learning from the Traditional Custodians will help us meet the challenges presented by drought, climate change and population growth.

Our area of operations covers over 12,700 km² of Aboriginal land, across the Dharawal, Gundungurra, Darkinjung, Dharug and Eora nations. Within this area we have two head offices, one laboratory, 30 plants and more than 845 pumping stations.

We are a workforce of approximately 2,700 employees. As of December 2020, slightly less than 1% of our employees identify as Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people.

We work collaboratively with Local Aboriginal Land Councils and Traditional Owners who hold registered Indigenous Land Use Agreements under the Native Title Act in our area of operations, including primarily:

- NSW Aboriginal Land Council
- Metropolitan Local Aboriginal Land Council
- Deerubbin Local Aboriginal Land Council
- Illawarra Local Aboriginal Land Council
- Gandangara Local Aboriginal Land Council
- La Perouse Local Aboriginal Land Council
- Tharawal Local Aboriginal Land Council
- Darkinjung Local Aboriginal Land Council
- Indigenous Land Use Agreement Holders over the Gundungurra Area Agreement

Our journey so far

In 2018, employees from across Sydney Water formed a working group and started development of an Innovate RAP to guide our reconciliation activities. Our reconciliation journey since July 2018 has resulted in a number of important initiatives:

Relationships

- Establishing a RAP Working Group made up of employees from across the business which in 2020 was reconstituted as our Reconciliation Committee with updated terms of reference. Our Managing Director is the executive sponsor of the Committee and we have representatives from all management levels, operational employees and business groups.
- Regular reporting to our Executive and Board on our reconciliation activities.
- The appointment to our Reconciliation Committee of an external Aboriginal co-chair to provide advice and guidance on our reconciliation actions.
- Engaging employees in marking significant days including Sorry Day, National Reconciliation Week and NAIDOC Week, to raise awareness and understanding of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories and cultures.
- Partnering with First Nations artists in our operating area to create site specific artworks.

Celebrating National Reconciliation Week 2021 with Aboriginal artists from Dalmarri, who conducted an art workshop with employees at our Potts Hill office.

Respect

- The development of cultural protocols for Welcome to Country and Acknowledgement of Country.
- To mark significant events, smoking ceremonies have been organised at our Potts Hill office in November 2019 to welcome our new Managing Director and at our Parramatta office in November 2020 as part of our NAIDOC Week celebrations.
- Conducting toolbox talks for frontline employees to help them recognise Aboriginal sites and artefacts in our area of operations.
- Running an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Cultural Competency Workshop, conducted by an Aboriginal trainer, for members of the Reconciliation Committee.
- Incorporating Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander knowledge, skills and cultures into our projects as happened with the restoration of a damaged seawall at our Port Kembla storm water plant.
- Undertaking a cultural immersion tour of our upper catchment areas with our Executive Team and Board.

Opportunities

- Undertaking a review of our early career programs to help us attract Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students into our graduate, undergraduate and traineeship programs.
 - Working with our recruiting team and contingent workforce providers to raise awareness of our commitment to improving employment opportunities for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people.
 - Joining with CareerTrackers to pilot their undergraduate intern program for talented Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander university students.
 - Becoming a Supply Nation member to improve Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander supplier diversity.
 - Employing an Indigenous Inclusion Specialist to support our reconciliation actions and Reconciliation Committee.

Our journey so far: Port Kembla seawall artworks

The rebuilding of a severely damaged sea wall at Sydney Water's Port Kembla stormwater plant, led to a successful collaboration with local Aboriginal groups and provides a template for how Aboriginal perspectives can be brought into projects in the future.

The seawall is about 220 metres long and features a walkway that allows maintenance staff, fishers and the public to access Red Point. Sydney Water's Michael Massih managed the restoration project which came about when heavy storms badly damaged the seawall. "We knew it was a place that Aboriginal people had occupied – there are a number of middens in the area – and so after talking to some of the local Aboriginal community groups and the CEO of the Illawarra Local Aboriginal Land Council, Paul Knight, it was agreed the project was a great opportunity to not just fix the seawall but tell the Aboriginal stories and history of the place."

A standout feature of the new seawall is the art installation commissioned by Sydney Water and done by local artists of the Coomaditchie United Aboriginal Corporation. Five artworks tell Dreamtime stories and the history of the place: whale migration, Hill 60, fishing and the industrialisation of the region.

Aboriginal landscapers were engaged to plant out the area and they selected plants native to the Illawarra to help stabilize the soil. The seawall walk opened to the public in mid-2020 and is an example of a successful collaboration with the Aboriginal community to incorporate Aboriginal knowledge, skills and culture into our projects in the development of a community asset.

This artwork by local artists of the Coomaditchie United Aboriginal Corporation, depicts the Five Islands Dreaming Story and is one of several art panels installed as part of the Port Kembla seawall restoration project.

The artwork shows Hill 60, the campsite and tribal area of the Wadi Wadi, and shows the dreaming story of the creation of the five islands.

Reconciliation Committee members

Our RAP Working Group was reconstituted as our Reconciliation Committee in mid-2020 and our Managing Director, Roch Cheroux is a member and its Executive Sponsor. The Reconciliation Committee is chaired by Emma Pryor, Head of Major Projects in our Asset Lifecycle Group, and in November 2020, we appointed an external Aboriginal co-chair Natalie Wilcock, Manager of the Aboriginal Education and Training Unit at TAFE Digital.

Our Reconciliation Committee has four Aboriginal employee representatives and non-Aboriginal members:

- Roch Cheroux, Managing Director and Executive Sponsor
- Emma Pryor, Chair and Head of Major Projects
- Natalie Wilcock, Co-chair and Manager of the Aboriginal Education and Training Unit, TAFE Digital
- Charles Agnew, Manager Asset Planning, Asset Lifecycle

Natalie Wilcock: Aboriginal Co-Chair of our Reconciliation Committee

Natalie Wilcock became co-chair of our Reconciliation Committee in November 2020. Sydney Water sought the involvement of an Aboriginal co-chair to help guide our reconciliation journey. Natalie is a senior manager in the Aboriginal Education and Engagement Team at TAFE Digital and is from the Gamilaraay Nation in North West NSW.

“My passion for sharing my Aboriginal heritage and knowledge has provided me with the skills to work collaboratively with other cultures to achieve positive outcomes for all and create an awareness and understanding that will help others appreciate our wonderful Aboriginal culture and heritage.

“My role involves working with Sydney Water’s Reconciliation Committee to celebrate and share the journey of our Aboriginal people from past to present and embed a culturally safe environment for all employees when working with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.”

Developing our Reconciliation Action Plan

At its core, our vision is to create and improve economic and social outcomes for First Nations people on the lands and waters on which we work, live and learn. This links to our corporate vision of ‘creating a better life with world-class water services’.

We aim to do this by developing respectful relationships and driving meaningful change by increasing employment opportunities for First Nations people; promoting recognition and respect for First Nations knowledge, cultures and histories in the work we do; and supporting the economic development of First Nations owned businesses through our employment, procurement and supply chain practices.

Two Point Co, a 100% Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander owned strategic consultancy, assisted us to develop our RAP. We ran workshops with our Reconciliation Committee members and key internal stakeholders and representatives from across all areas of our business including Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees, our Board of Directors and Executive Team, to gather insights on our ambition and goals for reconciliation.

Our Reconciliation Committee members are responsible for overseeing the development and implementation of our RAP. They also play a key role in being advocates to build understanding and awareness amongst employees and to champion the activities that support reconciliation at Sydney Water.
