Emergency repair work in your area – Night work expected

Sydney Water has begun emergency construction work to repair a leaking wastewater pipe beneath Zollner Circuit, Darling Harbour. While the issue is currently under control, it's important that we act quickly to prevent further damage and keep the wastewater system working properly in your area.

Work began on 4 May 2026 and is expected to continue for about three months, weather permitting.

Construction hours

Because this work is urgent and needs to fit around events at the ICC Sydney (ICCS), Darling Harbour, work hours will vary. Sometimes we will work during the day, and at other times at night, depending on ICCS events and construction needs. These changing work hours will continue until the project is finished.

What's happening

To support this work, we will establish a site compound and carry out construction activities within Zollner Circuit.

Our work includes :

- establishing a site compound on Zollner Circuit
- excavating and installing wastewater infrastructure
- general construction work to support the repair
- urgent repairs mean work will happen both day and night.

Traffic changes

So we can work safely there will be temporary traffic changes in the area:

- The northern side of Zollner Circuit, alongside TikTok Entertainment Centre (TTEC) will be closed during construction, and access will only be provided to ICCS and TTEC service vehicles.
- The southern side of Zollner Circuit, past the CommBank building, will be temporarily converted to two-way traffic
- Traffic changes will remain in place until work is complete, approximately three months.

Please see attached map for more details. Traffic management will be in place to help drivers and pedestrians.

What to expect

We know our work can be disruptive, so we'll make every effort to reduce any impact this work may have on you. You may experience:

- noise from construction activity . When we work at night, we'll aim to do the noisiest work in the early evening to minimise disruptions
- changes to traffic conditions and access
- increased vehicle and worker presence in the area.

This work will not interrupt your water or wastewater services.
